

The 21st Century Leadership Company

Personal Development Day

Learn about your own Motivational Value System and how quality relationships in the workplace and engaged staff can lead to improved communication, enhanced performance at work and reduce the cost of conflict.

Who Should Attend?

This is relevant for intact teams or cross functional groups that require greater collaboration or individuals who want to get a better understanding of themselves and insight on how to lead others more effectively.

Outcomes of the workshop:

- A self assessment tool showing your own motivational preferences which demonstrates how easy it is to get this vital information for your team
- Options for developing Employee Engagement within your organisation – giving you choices
- A measure of how engaged you feel whilst working for your current organisation
- Knowledge of new approaches and insights to improve the performance of your relationships

"I am more motivated and will definitely use what I have learned. The rest of the company needs to do it!"

"Great course, very interactive, highly recommended."

"Gave me good insight into my personal strengths. Enjoyable course with great training material."
